

In order to answer John Smith in the UK, Mervyn Drury in Canberra, Australia and James Weaton in Richmond California who all said that they no longer had the Wordpress.com Zero to Hero link on their Wordpress.com Dashboard, here is my answer on what to do. The Zero to Hero link just points to the <http://Learn.Wordpress.com> page which has all the tutorials you need. You will never be able to get this link on your Dashboard but if you insist that you do indeed need it then you must do the following 8 steps to have that link.

- (1) Go to wordpress.com by typing wordpress.com into your Internet browser's address bar and then hit enter to go to that site.
- (2) Click on My Sites Button on the top left of the page. Note: Also has the Wordpress Logo beside it.
- (3) If you only have 1 Wordpress website, then you can click on "+ Add New Wordpress". But if you have more than one Wordpress website, you would first click on "(Left Arrow) Switch Site" just below the name of your website, then click on "+ add new Wordpress".
- (4) You will come to Step 1 of 4, create your site today! where you would enter a unique site name or site address. I entered testbcr2 where bcr are my initials. If the site name is unique, you should get a green checkmark to the right of the .wordpress.com. You can now press on; "The create your site and continue blue button".
- (5) You should now get to Step 2 of 4, find a custom address. Scroll down the page with the scroll bar on the right to the bottom and click on the No Thanks white button.

- (6) You should now get to Step 3 of 4, choose a theme. Choose any theme, I chose Cubic in the middle to just move on.
- (7) You should now get to step 4 of 4, which plan would you like to use? Scroll down the page with the scroll bar on the right to the bottom and select the Free blue button.
- (8) This will get you to the thanks for signing up for Wordpress.com page which has the Zero to Hero guide and the Wordpress.com support documentation at the top but even better, scroll down to the bottom with the scroll bar on the right and click at the very bottom, "if you want you can skip these steps. You can come back to this page any time. Note: Do not click on the Remind me later or Hide this screen buttons on the right as you will lose the Welcome to Wordpress.com! page with the need help getting started? Visit our Zero-To-Hero Guide link.